Part A Set Task Information

Llilidays Centre

Llilidays Centre is an established concert and entertainment venue, serving the local and regional community of Shirevale. The centre is owned by a local entrepreneur, Gordon Stewart. Llilidays Centre has two halls, The Hive and The Burrow. Tour promoters can hire the halls for hosting concerts, family shows, comedy and pantomimes. Llilidays Centre chooses the programme of events and shows. The centre can refuse bookings from tour promoters if it feels the show does not match with its mission and values. The centre is well-loved by many of its visitors and has a good reputation for providing an excellent customer experience.

The mission of Llilidays Centre is to be the entertainment hub for local residents and visitors.

The values of Llilidays Centre are to:

- work as a team
- energise people
- champion diversity
- be customer focused
- be family-friendly.

Llilidays Centre's four main goals are to:

1. provide a varied and current programme of entertainment, to appeal to different audience types with different cultural and financial needs
2. maintain excellent levels of customer satisfaction for tour promoters booking the venue and customers buying tickets
3. maintain a positive business culture with high staff satisfaction
4. achieve 5% net profit margin each year.

The Managing Director is Catherine Emile. The owner and staff know she is a highly organised, motivational manager. She delegates responsibility well and spends time to support staff who need more guidance. The tour promoters are very complimentary of Catherine. They appreciate her drive and determination to ensure their events run smoothly, from booking the venue to the performance taking place.

Staff at Llilidays Centre are praised by the owner and tour promoters as people who are passionate about their jobs. A recent customer survey rated very high satisfaction levels on all aspects such as efficient service, friendly approach and being welcoming. Staff consistently have a positive attitude towards their work at Llilidays Centre. Customers feel 'part of the family';

Though the staff work hard and customer satisfaction levels are high, the centre has not made much net profit for the last three years. The centre is now only breaking even. The owner is worried that the centre will soon start making a loss.

An emergency meeting has been called to discuss Llilidays Centre's financial situation and the contributory factors.

A second factor is that Catherine is so busy running day-to-day operations that she has no time to develop a long-term strategy for the business. She needs to research new types of event that could be introduced to the venue. She needs to network with tour promoters to encourage them to bring new shows to Lilidays Centre.

A third factor is that employees are currently employed on either full-time or part-time contracts that state the number of hours they have to work each week. In addition, temporary workers are employed on fixed-term contracts during very busy periods, such as the December/January pantomime season. Employees are subdivided into different teams such as cleaning, catering and customer service. At present, employees across often clean the venue when no events are taking place and customer service staff have periods of inactivity when the venue is quiet.

At the emergency meeting it was decided that:

- Catherine will propose methods of creating a flexible workforce
- Catherine will change her job title to Chief Executive Officer and take a stronger leadership role
- Alex James, the existing Customer Service Manager, will be promoted to Managing Director. He will take over Catherine's day-to-day operational management role.

Lilidays Centre number of shows and total average capacity of each hall, per quarter Oct 2016-Sep 2019

One factor is that the same events are being booked into the halls every year and these shows appeal to the same target markets. Figure 1 shows the number of events that take place each quarter in each of the halls and the average percentage of seats sold for each hall.

Catherine understands that making any changes to employment contracts would need to be managed carefully. Catherine knows that her friend Tamjid Khan, who runs Clearway Theatre, introduced changes to employment contracts in January 2015. Clearway Theatre moved many employees on to zero-hours contracts. After these contract changes were introduced, there was an increase in absence rates amongst employees on zero-hours contracts. There was also a fall in customer satisfaction levels. Tamjid has produced three sets of data (Figures 2, 3 and 4) to show the changes that occurred to absence rates and customer satisfaction levels.

Figures 2 and 3 show the level of absenteeism at Clearway Theatre, by contract type, across five years (2013–2017).

Clearway Theatre: Average number of days lost per worker due to sickness

Contract type	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017
Full-time/part-time contracts	3.3	3.4	3.4	3.3	3.2
Zero-hours contracts	n/a	n/a	5.2	4.8	4.7

Figure 3

Tour promoters (or concert promoters) are the people or companies responsible for organising live concert tours, family shows, comedy performances and pantomimes. A tour promoter offers employment to a performer, usually through the performer's agent or manager.

What is a tour promoter?

Tamjid told Catherine that he is planning to give each employee a personal rota to show the days and hours that they have to work for the next full calendar month. They will be given the rota at least two weeks before the start of the month. For instance, they will receive their December rota on 15 November. Tamjid hopes that this initiative, which is one of a number of ideas, will improve business culture and employee satisfaction at Clearway Theatre.

Clearway Theatre – Customer feedback (Average scores out of 5)
